Efforts To Provide Money To Be Held Up For Year

WASHINGTON, May 17—Congress moved swiftly today to provide America with a military and naval force recommended by President Roosevelt to make the nation safe against attack from land, sea or air.

Machinery was set in motion by both branches to effect Mr. Roosevelt's $1,182,000,000 defense program of 50,000 fighting airplanes, with sea and ground forces to back them up.

So wholeheartedly did congress support the executive's recommendations that a race developed between house and senate to approve the defense plan first. Isolationists in both branches protested the President's demand for $200,000,000 in funds and contract authorizations to use as he saw fit, but their contentions were drowned out in a chorus of approval for the new program.

Congress apparently took the word of the President that financing the program was a comparatively minor matter. Nevertheless, Chairman Harrison (D) Miss., of the senate finance committee, and other fiscal leaders planned to take up this phase of the problem with the President today or tomorrow.

Financing Delay Seen

Obviously, fiscal leaders pointed out, the new program ultimately would compel a public debt increase or a new tax levy for financing. Whether either of these was to be attempted at this session was doubtful. Fiscal experts pointed out that the whole financing problem could be postponed until next session. This appeared likely.

Even Republican leaders conceded that legislation for the President's program might be completed by the end of next week. Democrats insisted that this was a certainty.

Hearings on all phases of the program got under way in both houses today. Secretary of War Harry Wooding was to testify before the house military affairs committee; Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, before the senate appropriations military subcommittee.

There were technicalities to be overcome, but with legislators at both ends of the capitol set on putting the program into effect as soon as possible, these were regarded as minor obstacles.

Mr. Roosevelt, in recommending his program to congress in a dramatic appearance before a joint session, omitted details, but shortly after he left the Capitol (Continued on Page Four)

He Asks Billion for Defenses

PRESIDENT Roosevelt is pictured during his momentous message to Congress in which he requested defense funds that will enable the United States to "meet any lightning offensive against American interests." The U. S. chief executive said the United States "should plan at this time a program that would provide us with 50,000 military and naval planes." Vice President Garner is pictured in background.

F. D.'S PLEA WINS SUPPORT LOCALLY

President Roosevelt's appeal for money to build the defenses of the United States to proper strength received wholehearted approval in Circleville Friday, the only opposition being raised by his demand for a $100,000,000 "blank check" which he will spend for any emergencies that arise in the program.

Democrats and Republicans alike expressed their opinions in favor of the executive's plan to build the army, air corps and navy to strength enough to turn back any power that might try to invade this land.

"All red tape should be cast aside and the President given a free hand immediately," was one expression.

The President's statement concerning the relatively brief flying time between numerous American cities and cities in other countries that could become hostile made many persons take notice.

CITIZENS OF U. S. FARMER SHOOT IN LONDON TOLD FOUR TO DEATH, TO RETURN HOME ENDS OWN LIFE

LONDON, May 17—Following receipt of instructions from Washington, the American embassy in London today advised American citizens in Great Britain to return home.

The embassy stated ships will be sent to meet American evacuees at the west coast of Elre, if possible.

Officials emphasized that Americans wishing to obtain passage across the Atlantic will have to travel to the port of embarkation in their own way and at their own expense.

There was a steady stream of callers at the embassy, all seeking advice.

The embassy said the port of embarkation has not been decided and added there is "no rush" yet.

HOOVER OFFERS SUPPORT TO PROGRAM OF DEFENSE

NEW YORK, May 17—Endorsing President Roosevelt's appeal for national re-armament—but warning against "undue haste"—former President Herbert Hoover today urged establishment of a national directing staff of industrial production leaders to throw the program into high gear.

'Convention' At O. S. U. Picks Burton Wheeler

COLUMBUS, May 17—After a mock presidential convention session, marked with whooping, cheering and the taking of six ballots, students at Ohio State University today had selected Sen. Burton Wheeler, Montana Democrat, as their choice for President.

Wheeler was chosen on the sixth ballot when he received 600 votes. A total of 552 votes was necessary for nomination. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who was one of 18 candidates entered in the Presidential race, was nominated as the student's vice-presidential nominee.

Before the mock convention finally swung to Wheeler, President Roosevelt, Gov. John W. Bricker and Thomas E. Dewey had all approached the 552 votes necessary for nomination.

Bricker came close on the second ballot with 537. On the third, Bricker had 491, and the President 490. On the fourth, Dewey came within one vote of nomination.

Wheeler surged to the front on the fifth ballot when he got 230 votes. President Roosevelt's 370 votes were switched to the Montana Senator on the next ballot, giving him the nomination.

However, it was all in fun. Demonstrations for favorite candidates delayed the convention into the wee hours of this morning.

W. F. Armstrong, Banker, Retired Farmer, Is Dead

Prominent Resident of Laurelvie Dies In Berger Hospital

William F. Armstrong, 81, one of the Laurelvie community's most prominent men, died Friday at 6 a. m. in Berger Hospital where he had been a medical patient since Sunday night. Mr. Armstrong's condition was considered serious when he was taken to the hospital. Complications resulted in death.

A retired farmer, banker and church leader, Mr. Armstrong had been a figure in the public life of Laurelvie, Adelphi and Logan for many years. He gave up active farming 34 years ago at which time he removed to Laurelvie.

He helped organize the Salt-creek Valley Bank at Laurelvie in 1900, being the last survivor of the five organizers, D. K. Wilson, George Reichelderfer, George D. Mowery and Milton Armstrong preceding him in death. He was vice president of the bank at his death.

He was a director of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank in Logan and a director of the Adelphi Banking Co. and had served two terms as a Hocking County commissioner. Mr. Armstrong was a lifelong Democrat and a member of the Methodist Church.

Born November 10, 1858, a son of William and Sarah Fetherolf Armstrong, he had spent his entire life in the Laurelvie community. He is survived by his widow, Mary Ann Kittsmiller Armstrong; a son, Merrill of Laurelvie, and a half-sister, Mrs. Minnie Kerns of Columbus.

The funeral will be Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the residence, the Rev. J. R. Fields of Xenia officiating with burial in Green Summit Cemetery, Adelphi, by H. E. Deffenbaugh and Sons. Pall bearers will include three officials of the Logan bank, Roland Bright, D. E. Harsh and Charles Yontz and three officials of the Adelphi bank, O. B. Armstrong, Elden Armstrong and Dr. Eugene Hennemer.

Friends may call at the home after noon Saturday.

FRANKLIN CAR OF HULSE ESTATE SELLS FOR $20

A Franklin automobile of vintage about 1914 brought $20 Thursday when a public sale of the household and personal possessions of the late Henry Hulse was conducted at the Hulse residence, 1210 South Court Street, Roy Walisa, 343 East Ohio Street, bid in the Franklin, one of the most interesting items offered at the sale which was conducted by Walter Bungarner with Wayne Hoover as the clerk.

Numerous other items were sold, the sale being considered an excellent one. Auctioneering started at 2 p. m. Thursday and continued until 9:45 with a large crowd present throughout the day.

60-MILE BREAK IN BIG FRENCH WALL CHARGED

Berlin Jubilant As Army Chiefs See Collapse Of Allied Units

BERLIN, May 17—Claims that the German army has pierced the Maginot Line along a 60-mile front were made in Berlin today.

An official communique issued by the Nazis high command said:

"The Maginot Line has been pierced along a 100-kilometre (60 mile) front line between the region south of Maubeuge and Carrignan southeast of Sedan.

"During the battle between Antwerp and Namur, we pierced Belgian Dyle River positions south of Wavre and captured the northeastern front at Namur fortress. "We defeated French armored units counter-attacking our armored units west of Dinant.

"Our army and air force units are pursuing the enemy everywhere and they are retreating to the West.

Capture of 12,000 Claimed

Southeast of Sedan, Lieutenant Colonel Balck, commander of a motorized sharpshooter regiment, gained special successes by his ruthless personal gallantry which resulted in capture of 12,000 prisoners, including two generals, and numerous field guns.

"On the southern wing, our own strong forces repulsed enemy counter-attacks and we even succeeded in gaining ground by re-attacking.

"As already reported, French long-range artillery bombarded the undefended city of Rastatt (Continued on Page Four)

MART BREAKS $1 AS NAZIS GAIN IN EUROPE'S WAR

NEW YORK, May 17—The stock market broke $1 to more than $5 a share in two forenoon selling rushes today on the new Allied reserves in the war.

The list opened higher and then quickly weakened, gains of more than $1 a share were wiped out in the first hour, and another selling wave hit the list before midday. The ticker fell two minutes behind in each case.

Hardest hit were aviation, which had scored a big runup late yesterday on President Roosevelt's defense message. Losses ran to more than $5 a share in Douglas. Steels broke $1 to $4 a share in Bethlehem, and elsewhere there were wide losses.

The list came up from the lows at noon once the selling had run its course but the undertone remained nervous.

ANTI-FRENCH, BRITISH SIGNS POSTED IN ITALY

ROME, May 17—Thousands of new anti-French and anti-British posters appeared in Rome today in a new wave of popular agitation against the Allies.

Some of the placards contained a mock obituary notice which thus proclaimed the death of the British fleet:

"The Lord of the Sea died this morning in the North Sea."

Others exhorted Italians to remember this country's claim to the island of Corsica "which for 2,000 years has been intensely Italian."

In view of the general war situation and continued speculation over the possibility of Italy's participation, American consulates throughout the country were reminded of permanent standing instructions to destroy codes and secret papers in event of emergency.

DIES DECLARES NEED FOR U. S. TO BE AWAKE

WASHINGTON, May 17—In a blazing indictment of Communism, Fascism, and Nazi organizations in this country, Rep. Martin Dies (D) Tex., chairman of the Dies committee, told the house today that America's first line of defense must be against trojan horse organizations and "fifth column" traitors.

Dies pointed to successive European conquests by Germany as proof of the effectiveness of these methods and their danger to any nation.

"If the confidence that we are invulnerable is to be an enduring trust, it must rest even more on the strength derived from the sacred commitment of our people to the principles of Americanism than in arms," said Dies.

JURORS REFUSE MONEY IN SUIT FOR AFFECTIONS

After deliberating for slightly over one hour Friday, a Common Pleas court jury returned a decision in favor of the defendant in the case of Albert Beglin, Columbus, against his mother-in-law, Mrs. Edna Fritz McGee of the Jackson Pike.

the Allied forces had been hurled back—were in retreat—from Antwerp to Sedan. The French war ministry admitted a mighty Nazi offensive had been launched against British positions north of the River Sambre. But, said the French, the German attack had succeeded only in forming a dent which the Allies now are seeking to reduce.

From Berlin came the jubilant declaration the Allies had suffered "the most catastrophic day" of the war. The Germans claimed the capture of two French generals in addition to 12,000 prisoners. And, in a general summary, the Germans proclaimed:

"We beat them as they never dreamed it would be possible to be beaten."

Dyle Area Pierced
The Dyle River positions of the Allies in Belgium were pierced, according to Berlin. German troops were claimed to have penetrated into Louvain and to have routed French and British troops from the heavily fortified French zone south of Sedan.

That was the German side of the picture. From France came declarations tending to greatly minimize the gains boasted by the Nazis. A French war ministry spokesman conceded that the German attackers had succeeded in forming a "pocket" bounded by (Continued on Page Four)

LEADERS OF AIR INDUSTRY READY TO RUSH OUTPUT

Factories Can Follow F. D. In His Speed-up Plans, Executives Say

MILITARY ORDERS FILLED

Germans Produce 1,800 Each Month; Nazis Have Edge Along Some Lines

NEW YORK, May 17 — America's booming aviation industry is prepared and fully able to step up production at once to turn out the 50,000 warplanes requested yesterday by President Roosevelt, leaders of the industry agreed today.

The order for 50,000 planes could easily be fulfilled, leaders of the industry agreed, and moreover, they claimed, American planes far exceed those of Germany in quality and effectiveness in war.

"Fortunately, the entire industry is in the best possible position to undertake the expansion in an orderly manner," said Col. John N. Joubert, a former army air corps bombing pilot and now president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of which most of the plane and engine manufacturers are members.

"Of our 45 air plants, 25 are working on military orders. The rearmament program started last year and quantity orders from the allies during the last several months have developed our production capacity and so changed manufacturing technique that further expansion is relatively simple. In other words, we have had nearly a year's experience in expanding production."

Industry Ready Now

To this, Robert E. Gross, head of California's Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, added the following words of assurance:

"If President Roosevelt wants to open the throttle for a 50,000 plane take-off, the American airplane industry is ready to go—and go right now."

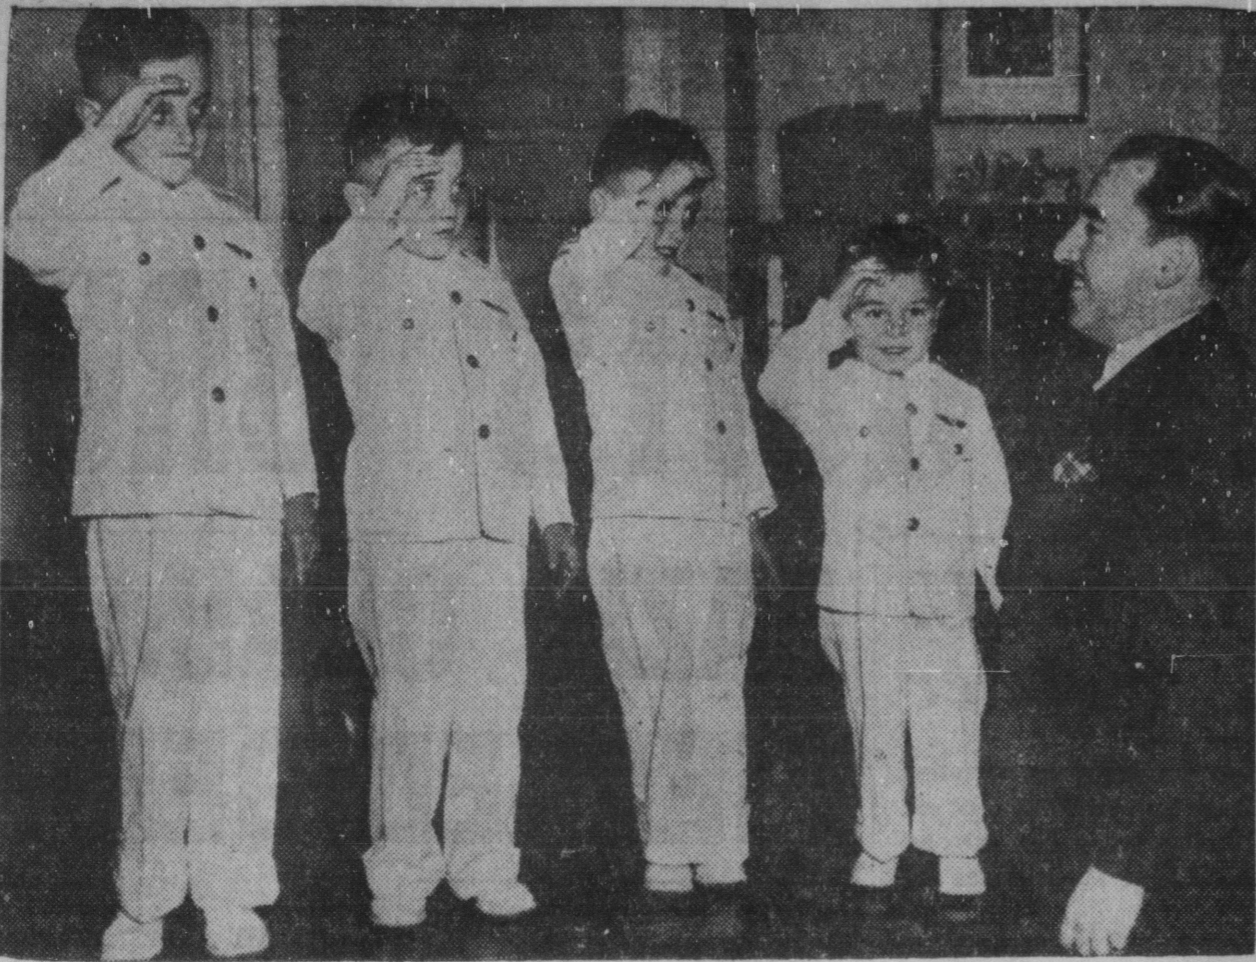

Similar assurances were given by Donald W. Douglas, president of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation which make giant bombers, and Tell Bema, manager of the National Machine Tool Builders Association. Col. Joubert and Bema emphasized that production in the machine tool industry would impose no "bottlenecks" such as might endanger a smooth continuity of plane production in other factories.

T. P. Wright, in charge of engineering for the Curtiss-Wright Corporation and an authority on military airplane construction and design, estimated that the Germans were now producing 1,800 military planes a month as compared with 500 of the American industry, but said that other factors should be considered. American pursuit planes are not only fully as speedy as those of the Germans but possess greater maneuverability, he asserted. This, he said, had been demonstrated in actual combat on the Western Front.

Germans Far Ahead
Germany holds the edge over the United States and other nations in the development of a .20 or .22 millimeter cannon for airplane use but America, Wright said, has a better .50 caliber aircraft machine gun, a far superior bomb sight, and better sources of raw materials for plane production.

Col. Joubert estimated that to carry out Mr. Roosevelt's program it would be necessary to triple the

VICTIM'S SONS WATCH KILLERS' EXECUTION

CHICAGO, May 17—Two young men convicted of slaying 64-year-old Viggo Peterson during a hold-up last October were electrocuted in Cook County electric chair early today while Peterson's three sons looked on.

The two who died were Victor Nukowski and Frank Michalowski, both 25, who were refused last minute pleas for clemency. A third youth convicted of the crime, Henry Drewke, 22, was granted a reprieve by Gov. Henry Horner until June 21 to permit a review of his case.

Peterson's sons, Viggo, Albert and George, were among 65 witnesses to the executions.

JUDGE HORNBECK TURNS DOWN MYERS' POSITION

COLUMBUS, May 17 — The state supreme court seat of the late Judge George S. Myers remained unoccupied today following refusal by Judge Roscoe G. Hornbeck, of London, to accept a temporary appointment to the post.

Governor Bricker, who had offered the appointment to Hornbeck, said the jurist declined the honor because he was "too busy" to accept it. Hornbeck, who is completing a six year term on the court of appeals, is opposed for re-election.

Civil Service Practice Examinations by The Pergande Publishing Company.—These practice tests give new type questions for home study and school, objective questions, and bibliographies for further study for the following positions: Stationary engineer, fireman, clerk, stenographer-clerk and typist, postmaster, guard, watchman, janitor, forest and field clerk, chemist, and physicist.

Witnesses in Court by H. W. Taft.—This book is a study of evidence and witnesses in law suits. Mr. Taft comes to the defense of the witness and suggests a few reforms in the rules regarding evidence and the rules regarding trial judges and counsel. A particularly interesting chapter deals with the various types of witnesses that a lawyer encounters, and many examples are taken from the author's wide experience as counsel.

The Expert Witness by A. L. Mundo.—This book, presented to the library along with Witnesses in Court by Mr. C. E. Hill, also deals with opinion evidence of expert and non-expert witnesses. Interesting reading for the lawyer and the layman.

The Man who Killed Lincoln, by Philip Van Doren Stern.—This exciting biography is a psychological study of that shadowy figure in American history, John Wilkes Booth, and his part in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. Presented to the library by Mr. C. E. Hill.

At home with the Parisian scene she puts down on paper the Paris she has known; with an eye for picturesque detail and an ear for gossip she presents the European diplomats, Miss Flanner discusses Monte Carlo, wine, hotels, crime, Queen Mary of England, and Adolph Hitler.

HITLER ASSIGNS HONOR GUARD TO KAISER'S HOME

BERLIN, May 17—Chancellor Hitler has ordered an honor guard of two sentries posted at Doorn House in Holland, the home of former Kaiser Wilhelm, it was understood today.

The ex-kaiser has indicated his intention to remain at Doorn despite the war.

ANSWER TO CENSUS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico.—Unwillingness on the part of Puerto Rico's peons to answer the question proposed in Uncle Sam's census is easily overcome by Enumerator Ana Angelica Velilla. When she goes deep into the hills she produces a photograph of herself interviewing Governor William D. Leahy. To the reluctant she points out, "if it's good enough for the Governor, it must be good enough for you." Thus far Enumerator Velilla's score is perfect.

Next Monday evening the even half-dozen councilmen, Allison, Acord, Petty, Conrad, Hoover and Morrison with the other five members of the official family, Mayor Hines, Clerk Willis, Treasurer Morrison, Marshall Walden and his assistant Cecil Scott, will be in regular session at the council chamber. Other than the paying of bills a couple of ordinances may be up for consideration and maybe action. The gambling ordinance up for passage at the last session did not get along so well receiving but three favorable votes out of the six. The storm water sewer which is to be constructed by a WPA force is scheduled to begin Monday. It is for the relief of the new East Lawners who did not get along so well during the recent wet spell but this new sewer will take care of all of them out there.

Third Session, Mon., May 20

Monday is your last chance to hear Miss Dahy Barnett, nationally-known food lecturer, explain to you and tell you of the advantages and quality of our Vitamin D. Milk and dairy products.

You will hear, for the last time, the proper ways and means of using buttermilk for cooking . . . you will hear her tell how much more economical it is to use buttermilk, and that it is just as valuable as milk when you are cooking.

So we invite you to attend the final session of the Grand Theatre's Cooking School. It will be an educational lecture that you will long remember Come Monday, sure!

The May Day program was held on May 8, with practically all the school participating. The first four grades formed the flower garden, the fifth and sixth grades gave a folk dance and the May-pole dance, the seventh and eighth grades and the high school provided the singing. The high school boys gave exercises in tumbling. Jane Dawson was the May Queen, chosen by popular vote. Her attendants were Charlotta Schaal, Ruth Mary Crawford, Grace Seymour, Dorothy Poling, Alice Hartsaugh, and Marjorie Ann Spangler.

On Tuesday, May 7, athletes of the Adelphi school came to Saltcreek to stage a preliminary field meet. This helped to get the boys in practice for the Saturday Field Meet at New Holland. The boys who placed in the county meet were Francis Fraumfelter, Paul Fortner, Marvin Johnston, John Ebert, third in the mile relay; Bob Strous, who tied for fourth in the pole vault; and Marvin Johnston, who made third in the half mile run.

Important dates for the rest of the school year include: May 19, Baccalaureate at 8:00—Rev. C. F.

Bowman from Circleville will be the speaker; May 21, Class Night at 8:00—the program will be given by the senior class; May 22, Eighth Grade Commencement at 10:00 a. m.—Rev. Robert Klausmeier from Adelphi will speak; May 23, Commencement at 8:00—Lloyd Reese of Washington C. H. will give the address.

Some of the honors won by Saltcreek School during the year are as follows: 1st prizes in the school exhibit and float at the Circleville Pumpkin Show.

Senior Scholarship tests: Charlotta Schaal tied for second in the county. Robert Strous made seventh in the county.

County elimination tests: Mabel Holbrook, third for World History; Charlotta Schaal, first for Latin II, and first for American History; Marcine Dickson, first in Typing; Ruth Mary Crawford, second in Typing; Mildred Shupe tied for first in English II, and third in Physics; Jean Brown, first in French II, and first in English I.

District tests: Charlotta Schaal, first in Latin II; Marcine Dickson, first in Typing; Jean Brown, tenth in French I; Mildred Shupe, twelfth in English II.

Eighth Grade tests: Mary Anne Macklin, third in the county; Franklin Rodocker, fourth in the county. These two will go to Columbus May 18 to receive certificates of award at Memorial Hall.

VILLAGE COUNCIL TO TAKE ACTION
ON ORDINANCES

Gambling Question May Be
Up For Another Hearing
After 3 To 3 Ballot

NEW BUILDING STARTS

School Board To Choose
High School Teachers
Monday Evening

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

Next Monday evening the eleven-member councilmen, Allison, Accord, Petty, Conrad, Hoover and Morrison with the other five members of the official family, Mayor Hines, Clerk Willis, Treasurer Morrison, Marshall Walden and his assistant Cecil Scott, will be in regular session at the council chamber. Other than the paying of bills a couple of ordinances may be up for consideration and maybe action. The gambling ordinance up for passage at the last session did not get along so well receiving but three favorable votes out of the six. The storm water sewer which is to be constructed by a WPA force is scheduled to begin Monday. It is for the relief of the new East Lawners who did not get along so well during the recent wet spell but this new sewer will take care of all of them out there.

Ashville—Another new, modern, 5-room cottage went into the starting stage yesterday, up Northeast on Powell Street. Ralph Cloud is owner and with Dad John Cloud and others as assistant, there will be another new one shortly to add to our "dozen for sure" in 1940.

Ashville—The open-air picture show did not materialize Thursday on account of rain much to the disappointment of quite a few who had come to see it. . . .

Ashville—Robert Koch, wife and babe now occupy the Hook dwelling on Main Street removing from the rooms over the L. B. Daily grocery.

Ashville—There may have been some of the other kind, but all the school youngsters we contacted Thursday were glad that "old school" as we named it to them, would soon "be out" and they'd have not much else to do all summer long but play. All, too, were pleased to tell us that they had "passed". And among them, not one had an unkind word for their teacher when interrogated along the line.

Ashville—Not many had any idea of what they might choose to do when once they were through with school. Know a lot of these school children and we have yet to find a "smart one" in the bunch.

Ashville—Next Monday and Tuesday are final examination days with commencement exercises Tuesday evening, Wednesday is "last day of school" with plenty eats and all.

Ashville—And along this school line, we are naming Monday evening as the date of meeting for the high school board composed of Dr. C. J. Rocky, Stanley Beckett, Jesse Baum and Benford Millar with Earl Essick clerk and C. A. Higley superintendent. Along with the paying of bills and other business, the employment of high school teachers for the next school year will be considered.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., — Arthur W. and Joseph Bradbury, brothers, met recently for the first time in 28 years. The meeting was occasion for revelation that their last previous meeting had come after a 28-year parting. Arthur is a resident of New Bedford, while Joseph lives in Phoenix, Arizona.

LUCKY ESCAPE

LONDON—A six-foot laborer, working on a Scottish airfield, accidentally stepped into the slipstream from an airplane. He was blown through the air into another plane which was turning over. A spade he was carrying was flung into the air and fell onto a third plane. The laborer was only slightly injured.

60-MILE BREAK IN BIG FRENCH WALL CHARGED

without military reasons. In retaliation, heaviest German batteries were thereupon ordered to open fire on Haguenau.

"In Holland, capture of islands in the province of Zeeland continues. Tholand island capitulated yesterday.

"The main objective of our air force yesterday were enemy rear communications in France and Belgium.

"Numerous railway lines and roads were devastated, troop transport trains destroyed and troop concentrations and marching columns scattered.

"Attacking enemy naval forces and transports off the Dutch and Belgian coast, we sank one cruiser and one gunboat and damaged one transport which had to be beached. Two French destroyers were damaged.

"In the Central North Sea, one submerged enemy submarine struck a bomb and was most likely destroyed.

Narvik Area Active

"Off Narvik we succeeded in hitting with bombs one battleship and one light cruiser and also set afire a tanker of 15,000 tons. One enemy chaser was shot down in battle.

"We relieved our mountain chasers in their defensive battle by air attacks on enemy disembarkations and concentrations. "Yesterday the enemy lost 59 airplanes in the West of which 30 were shot down in air battles, eight destroyed by anti-aircraft and the remainder on the ground. "Fifteen of our own planes are missing."

Six German Messerschmitts shot down 13 British Blenheims in Belgium within an hour without suffering any losses, military headquarters said.

The Allied naval losses, these quarters said, occurred for the most part off Dunkerque, France. British and French troops have been routed at many points between Antwerp and Sedan and are retreating rapidly in the direction of Paris, German quarters said.

Some British forces, however, seem to be heading for the north channel ports, "leaving the impression that there is some difference of opinion as to where to make the next stand."

If the German claims of a large-scale retreat and widespread puncture of the Maginot Line are correct, Brussels may fall without a shot being fired, it was said.

Dive Bombers Used

German quarters laid stress on the devastating effect of the Reich's new weapons and the strength of the Nazi air force. Prisoners show the mental effects of attacks by Stukas (dive-bombers) for 24 hours, it was said.

An entire French division surrendered yesterday by laying a white cloth on the ground and throwing down its weapons when a single Stuka appeared for attack, it was charged.

After 48 hours of vague assertions that a great battle was pending, information from Chancellor Hitler's military headquarters, according to qualified German sources in Berlin, contains the following points:

1—The Germans have pierced the allied Dyle River positions in Belgium.

2—German troops have penetrated into Louvain.

3—They have advanced deeply through heavy French defenses south of Sedan.

4—French and British troops have been routed and are fleeing in all directions.

Under Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's personal direction, military quarters said, the German army has now broken through "irreparably" at three points in the

SOLONS TO NEED WEEK TO VOTE F. D. R.'S PLAN

Rep. May (D) Ky., chairman of the house military affairs committee, introduced a bill which broke down the huge totals of the president's request.

Breakdown Provided

As outlined by May, the $546,000,000 immediately requested for the army would provide:

Training of 7,000 pilots and 30,000 airplane mechanics a year; necessary arms for 1,000,000 soldiers; $60,000,000 for anti-aircraft guns and ammunition; $44,000,000 for special plants to turn out technical equipment; $64,000,000 for blankets, parachutes, trucks, etc.; $4,000,000 for seacoast defense improvement; $80,000,000 for the purchase of 200 heavy bombers; $80,000,000 for development of the anchorage, Alaska, air base; $7,740,000 for educational orders, and money to add one streamlined mechanized division on 15,000 troops to the army.

Navy Money—$250,000,000—was to go into the pending navy supply bill, as the army money—$546,000,000—was to be written into the pending army supply legislation. Decision on how to handle the $186,000,000 of contract authorizations and the special $200,000,000 to be doled out by the President was still undetermined.

NAZI ADMIRAL TAKES UP HIS RESIDENCE IN OSLO

STOCKHOLM, May 17—Grand Admiral Erich Raeder of Germany has arrived in Oslo, Norway, establishing headquarters in a hotel where a special guard has been established, it was reported in Stockholm today.

The advice said German freighters are arriving daily at Oslo, unloading troops, automobiles, motorcycles and horses. Every night, it was added, trains loaded with tanks and guns, depart from Oslo for the North.

Thirty German warships were reported to have paid a brief visit to Oslo Harbor a few days ago.

Franco-Belgian defenses, namely at Louvain, Wavre and Sedan.

Through these gaps Nazi troops are pouring constantly, while the southward enveloping movement from Antwerp further menaces the Allied line.

Collapse of the Dyle-Namur line presages collapse of Belgian resistance, it was said, with her troops eventually falling back to West Flanders, the Schelde and Yser River positions. These are already threatened from behind Antwerp, according to Nazi sources.

the Sambre River in the North, Sedan in the East and the area just north of Rethel in the South. Calmly, the French spokesman observed:

"The first thing to do when a pocket is formed is to check its growth—to counter-attack or to take up new positions."

In the face of the claims of fast advances against Allied positions, the German government nevertheless moved to convince the people of the Reich that the Allies cannot be beaten overnight.

An inspired comment issued in Berlin made it clear that Chancellor Hitler is fully aware of the immensity of the task he has undertaken in the offensive that began nearly a week ago.

Early Victory Discounted Asserting that the high command's communications are likely to be meager for the next few days, the Berlin statement added:

"The German nation knows that a struggle against the armies of two great military powers cannot be won in a few days or weeks."

But while the German public thus was exhorted to keep calm and patient, an official Berlin announcement said that Allied planes dropped bombs on Cologne, killing one man and injuring another, Wednesday night.

Yesterday in London the air ministry announced that British warplanes had delivered the war's heaviest aerial bombardment against German communications east of the Rhine on Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

The French high command, meanwhile, issued a guarded statement regarding the battle in the Sedan area. This communication stated:

"The battle continued yesterday and during the night between the Sambre River and the region north of Rethel, as well as south of Sedan. Fighting was less severe in Belgium."

Paris was declared within the military zone and placed under military rather than civil control. In a dispatch from the Louvain front in Belgium, Robert G. Nixon, International News Service correspondent with the British Expeditionary Force, revealed that British tomnies have halted the German advance in that area.

He reported that shelling is now reducing the houses of Louvain to heaps of rubble. At London it was announced that another detachment of Australians is disembarking at Egypt and proceeding to specified positions in Palestine.

Tension in Switzerland, meanwhile, eased as a result of reports that German troops concentrated along the Swiss frontier have been withdrawn.

In Washington congress moved quickly to provide the United States with the enlarged military and naval forces recommended by President Roosevelt. It was conceded that legislation for the program might be completed by the end of next week.

The State Department renewed efforts to bring Americans home from the war areas. Americans in Britain were urged to leave for Eire, where ships are to be provided to carry them across the Atlantic.

NON-FATTENING POTATO DEVELOPED IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 17—Starchless, non-fattening potatoes, a boon to dieters who can't keep away from "spuds," were revealed today at the estate of the late Samuel Untermyer in Yonkers.

The new "potatoes" were developed by George H. Chisholm, the Untermyer gardener, by crossing tomato and potato plants.

Chisholm recently produced honeydew melons flavored with cognac, port wine and benedictine by inoculating the melon plants with these liquors.

SWISS SITUATION EASES AS SOME TROOPS LEAVE

ZURICH, May 17 — Tension in Switzerland eased somewhat today as a result of reports that some of the German troops concentrated along the frontier have been withdrawn.

It was presumed the German troops are bound for the fighting area in Belgium and northern France. Earlier the Swiss general staff reported that Swiss fighter planes attacked a formation of German bombers over Zurich, forcing one of the German craft to land. Two wounded members of the German crew were reported captured and interned.

NEW YORK SCHOOL MAN URGES RAID SHELTERS

MIDDLEVILLE, N. Y., May 17 — Immediate construction of air raid shelters for public school children and the drilling of pupils in their use was urged today by a New York school principal.

"Measures should be taken for the protection of school children in the event of air raids in the light of war developments of the last few months," the principal, John Moehle, of the West Canada Valley Central School, wrote State Commissioner of Education Frank P. Graves.

Drawing up of rules and suggestions for protection against air raid attacks would at least impress upon the teachers and children "the tragic conditions under which children are living today in European countries," Moehle wrote.

MERRY, FREE AGAIN, SAYS SHE HAS NO NEW LOVE

NEW YORK, May 17 — Much-married Merry Fahmy, the Chicago patent medicine heiress, was free again today.

She got her final divorce decree yesterday against Count Oleg Cassini, Husband No. 4, and immediately announced she was not interested romantically in any particular man at the present and was just as anxious to get rid of the count as she was to drop the title of countess.

"I have no intention of re-marrying," declared Merry.

without military reasons. In retaliation, heaviest German batteries were thereupon ordered to open fire on Haguenau.

"In Holland, capture of islands in the province of Zeeland continues. Tholand island capitulated yesterday.

"The main objective of our air force yesterday were enemy rear communications in France and Belgium.

"Numerous railway lines and roads were devastated, troop transport trains destroyed and troop concentrations and marching columns scattered.

"Attacking enemy naval forces and transports off the Dutch and Belgian coast, we sank one cruiser and one gunboat and damaged one transport which had to be beached. Two French destroyers were damaged.

"In the Central North Sea, one submerged enemy submarine struck a bomb and was most likely destroyed.

Narvik Area Active

"Off Narvik we succeeded in hitting with bombs one battleship and one light cruiser and also set afire a tanker of 15,000 tons. One enemy chaser was shot down in battle.

"We relieved our mountain chasers in their defensive battle by air attacks on enemy disembarkations and concentrations. "Yesterday the enemy lost 59 airplanes in the West of which 30 were shot down in air battles, eight destroyed by anti-aircraft guns and the remainder on the ground. "Fifteen of our own planes are missing."

Six German Messerschmidts shot down 13 British Blenheims in Belgium within an hour without suffering any losses, military headquarters said.

The Allied naval losses, these quarters said, occurred for the most part off Dunkerque, France. British and French troops have been routed at many points between Antwerp and Sedan and are retreating rapidly in the direction of Paris, German quarters said.

Some British forces, however, seem to be heading for the north channel ports, "leaving the impression that there is some difference of opinion as to where to make the next stand."

If the German claims of a large-scale retreat and widespread capture of the Maginot Line are correct, Brussels may fall without a shot being fired, it was said.

Dive Bombers Used

German quarters laid stress on the devastating effect of the Reich's new weapons and the strength of the Nazi air force. Prisoners show the mental effects of attacks by Stukas (dive-bombers) for 24 hours, it was said.

An entire French division surrendered yesterday by laying a white cloth on the ground and throwing down its weapons when a single Stuka appeared for attack, it was charged.

After 48 hours of vague assertions that a great battle was pending, information from Chancellor Hitler's military headquarters, according to qualified German sources in Berlin, contains the following points:

1—The Germans have pierced the allied Dyle River positions in Belgium.

2—German troops have penetrated into Louvain.

3—They have advanced deeply through heavy French defenses south of Sedan.

4—French and British troops have been routed and are fleeing in all directions.

Under Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's personal direction, military quarters said, the German army has now broken through "irreparably" at three points in the

Rep. May (D) Ky., chairman of the house military affairs committee, introduced a bill which broke down the huge totals of the president's request.

Breakdown Provided

As outlined by May, the $546,000,000 immediately requested for the army would provide:

Training of 7,000 pilots and 70,000 airplane mechanics a year; necessary arms for 1,000,000 soldiers; $60,000,000 for anti-aircraft guns and ammunition; $44,000,000 for special plants to turn out technical equipment; $64,000,000 for blankets, parachutes, trucks, etc.; $4,000,000 for seacoast defense improvement; $80,000,000 for the purchase of 200 heavy bombers; $8,000,000 for development of the anchorage, Alaska, air base; $7,740,000 for educational orders, and money to add one streamlined mechanized division on 15,000 troops to the army.

Navy Money—$250,000,000—was to go into the pending navy supply bill, as the army money—$546,000,000—was to be written into the pending army supply legislation. Decision on how to handle the $186,000,000 of contract authorizations and the special $200,000,000 to be doled out by the President was still undetermined.

NAZI ADMIRAL TAKES UP HIS RESIDENCE IN OSLO

STOCKHOLM, May 17—Grand Admiral Erich Raeder of Germany has arrived in Oslo, Norway, establishing headquarters in a hotel where a special guard has been established, it was reported in Stockholm today.

The advices said German freighters are arriving daily at Oslo, unloading troops, automobiles, motorcycles and horses.

Every night, it was added, trains loaded with tanks and guns, depart from Oslo for the North.

Thirty German warships were reported to have paid a brief visit to Oslo Harbor a few days ago.

Franco-Belgian defenses, namely at Louvain, Wavre and Sedan.

Through these gaps Nazi troops are pouring constantly, while the southward enveloping movement from Antwerp further menaces the Allied lines.

Collapse of the Dyle-Namur line presages collapse of Belgian resistance, it was said, with her troops eventually falling back to West Flanders, the Schelde and Yser River positions. These are already threatened from behind Antwerp, according to Nazi sources.

BURTON TO RUN OWN CAMPAIGN FOR U. S. POST

Cleveland Mayor To Open Headquarters In Home Community

TO MEET WITH BRICKER

Whether Nominee Will Ask Ouster Of Ed Schorr Is Another Question

COLUMBUS, May 17—Rather than entrust his campaign for the U. S. senate to persons unfriendly to his candidacy before his smashing victory in Tuesday's primary, Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland will maintain his own headquarters in Cleveland.

This was learned today as the nominee prepared to meet with Gov. John W. Bricker in the statehouse for a preliminary discussion of campaign plans.

Burton was expected to inform Bricker that he will cooperate fully with the state campaign committee to elect the entire Republican ticket in November. He said he has no intention of resigning as mayor before the November election.

The meeting today between the heads of the G.O.P. state ticket resulted from a telephone call by Bricker to Burton. The governor expressed the hope that they could get together and talk over the campaign and Burton replied that there was no more suitable time than the present.

Schorr Stands at Stake

It was doubtful that the senatorial nominee would demand that Ed D. Schorr, of Cincinnati, be unseated as state chairman when the central committee reorganizes soon, because of the amity between Bricker and Schorr.

However, some of Burton's influential supporters favor such step in view of the state chairman's emphatic denunciation of the nominee before the primary as "not a good organization man."

A measure of tenseness was almost certain to ensue because the Bricker pow-wow because the governor, while not lending his voice to the pre-primary Burton bailing of the state organization, sat on the same platform in Cincinnati from which Schorr repudiated the mayor's candidacy.

Many of his appointees worked hard to nominate Congressman Dudley White, whom Burton defeated by 56,000 votes.

Schorr's anti-Burton activities stemmed from the difference of opinion between the mayor and Bricker during Cleveland's relief difficulties last fall. Burton wanted the governor to call the legislature into session to appropriate additional funds. But with his administration pledged to economy and no new taxes, Bricker rejected the entreaty.

Possibly because he was a leading dark horse G.O.P. presidential possibility, New Dealers seized upon the incident to picture Bricker as "heartless and deaf to the suffering of the unfortunate."

Schorr felt this unfavorable and, to his mind, undeserved publicity hurt the party and that Burton was to blame.

Finally the governor and the mayor got together and worked out a plan for solving Cleveland's relief problem temporarily without recalling the legislature.

Meantime, fears of some Republicans that their national convention in Philadelphia might be changed from June 24 to mid-August because of European war developments, were quieted by National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton.

He stated with finality that the convention will be held on the date planned originally. There is no reason to substitute another date, he commented in Philadelphia, and it could not be done now anyway.

In Cincinnati to address the Ohio State Medical Association, U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio Republicans' favorite son candidate for president, said Congress will have to raise new taxes, but because "other spending by the government is so extravagant, and not because of new defense expenditures."

He suggested that in casting about for new revenue Congress should explore the possibility of a "very moderate" sales tax and boost middle bracket income taxes.

OPEN LETTERS

TO POLITICAL CHIEFS

EXECUTIVES: The action taken last week to combat Circleville's vote buying practice is commendable, despite the fact that the publicity given the undertaking was not so favorable in some respects. Numerous Central Ohio cities were given the impression that Circleville and Pickaway County comprised another Harlan County or another Pike County where voting frauds are the rule rather than the exception. Political chairmen proved in this undertaking that cooperation is possible even between rival political camps when the good of the community is concerned. There are persons in Circleville who have said they would not vote unless they were paid for it: they should be barred from forever casting another ballot for a candidate. Much of the fault can be traced to the politicians themselves, because if they refused to put out money voters would have no source available from which to receive their 50 cents or dollar, or whatever may be the current price for votes. Some believe that law authorities should have remained quiet concerning their patrolling plans until the day of the primary and then to make some arrests as object lessons. Whether this would have been a more efficient method than the one used is something else. Here's hoping that political leaders and candidates get together before the fall election and decide definitely to put out no money at all. Whether this possibility exists is not known, but the refusal of both parties to buy votes would go a long way toward breaking up the practice.

TO NEW HOLLAND ATHLETES

BOYS, GIRLS: It might be a good idea to keep this Open Letter in type so that it can be used from year to year to offer congratulations to you boys and girls who walked away with the annual Pickaway County track and field title. Each year finds a New Holland track and field team right at the top in competition, whether it be county or district, and 1940 found the school's representatives among the best, as a team, that have been developed in a long while. I believe that the total of points scored by you athletes was the highest ever recorded in the county, and for that accomplishment, congratulations, too. The various individuals who comprised the track and field team deserve credit, as do the youngsters who participated for other schools of the county. There is talk of abandoning the track and field competition in favor of other spring sports, but I feel certain that before this is done there will be much protesting from the New Holland community, and such protesting would be perfectly in order. Some of the county's other schools would do well to stress track and field competition because boys and girls can compete instead of boys only as would be the case if some other form of competition were approved for the county schedule.

TO HONORED STUDENTS

GIRLS: Orchids this week go to the Misses Marilyn Lutz and Eleanor McDill for their selection as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, of Circleville High School's graduating class. The word selection is not exactly a proper one, because the girls earned their honors rather than being selected for them. To be the two highest in a class the size of this year's graduating group is truly an honor, one of which the girls named can well be proud. Their work goes back over a four year period because grades are checked during the entire high school career to determine those who deserve ranking honors. The commencement on June 3 should be a splendid one with Dr. Otto Mees scheduled for the address. Seniors are busy winding up their work, those in danger of missing the graduation express doing a lot of grinding, and others enjoying themselves by other means.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PARENTS

FOLK: Saturday night brings an event to Central Ohio that should attract many hundreds of persons to the coliseum at the Ohio State fairgrounds. It is the annual Central Ohio Area Council Scout-o-Rama put on by the Boy Scouts of the district. Circleville and Pickaway County will have troops competing, youths seeking honor against other youths in good, clean competition and having fun at the same time. The flag ceremony that opens the festivities is awe-inspiring. It is something that persons who have seen the Scout-o-Rama can never forget. I wish that it would be possible for every father and mother of a boy of Scout age in Circleville and Pickaway County to be present for this Scout-o-Rama. I am certain that Scout organization leaders would have no trouble obtaining support for their troop organization program if such a thing could be arranged. Scout leaders are needed now, and so is money with which to carry on the Boy Scout program in Pickaway County. Members of the various Circleville troops have tickets for the Scout-o-Rama and I hope they are able to sell all of them.

CIRCUITEER.

TO TEEGARDIN FAMILY

FRIENDS: The announcement this week that polled shorthorn stock developed at your property near Duval had won a grand title at a livestock show in New South Wales, Australia, is a tribute to you people who have developed one of the finest, if not the finest, shorthorn herd in the United States. The Teegardin stock has won hundreds of awards in county fairs, state fairs and numerous expositions, whether national or international, but this one caps the successes of the shorthorns. The Australian exposition was advertised as the greatest of its kind in the country from "down under", and the honor won by the Pickaway County-bred stock is indeed one of which to be proud.

WORLD AT A GLANCE.....

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

AIRMEN all are saying, "We told you so." Surface warriors don't admit that the Norwegian campaign has proved the obsolescence of their methods of fighting. They're not quite as confident as they were, however.

Naval opinion is even more disorganized than army strategists. Even aviators don't dispute that soldiers have got to get down to earth to occupy any particular area. Flyers can devastate everything underneath them, but, having done so, it's admitted that nothing remains for them but to scoot away; they can't dig in and stay there. They'll have prepared the way for groundlings to bounce in and take possession, but that final job is left to terrestrial scrappers.

Aviators do contend, though, that a powerful air fleet opposed to a comparatively weak one, is a sure winner over sea strength, however overwhelming it may be on the water.

Naval men have argued contrarily. They haven't pook-pooked the plane, but they've maintained that it's a mere "arm"—not decisive.

Quoting our own American experts, I had occasion to remark recently that the current war promises to settle this controversy. It wasn't settled by the last world conflict, because aviation was then relatively in its infancy. It wasn't settled by subsequent experimentation, because that sort of theoretical maneuver isn't overly convincing.

THE REAL ARTICLE

Now we're getting the real article, under modern conditions. Nobody can say that, thus far, Germany hasn't had overwhelming the best of matters, as to Norway. True, the Germans have outnumbered the Allies there, but they had to GET there either over, across or under the water.

If Britain's sea supremacy is what it's cracked up to be, why didn't John Bull prevent this?

Answer, according to the aviators, is: Sea supremacy has gone floozy. German aviation has done the business.

Their version is that fleets no longer amount to much. They still are in favor of land battalions, but they speak of warships as back numbers.

Naval men's account is different. Their story is that the Allies were asleep at the switch, or they'd have spiked the German invasion. Also, they say, this affair has been at very short range—that planes can't operate effectively anywhere except very close to their jumping-off places.

All the same, the Germans registered. Surface folk are somewhat rattled by it. Not that they care a hoot—but they're professionally interested by it.

NAVY SECRETARY EDISON

Navy Secretary Charles Edison's doubts are highly significant.

Edison is generally regarded as the ablest navy secretary we ever had, both on the strength of his personal record, and because of his hereditary background.

We need, Edison tells us, to have our warship armament rejiggered, in opposition to overhead warfare.

When an authority like Edison speaks he's worth listening to.

Hitherto a warship has needed to be protected against broadside hits. Then it began to be necessary to protect it against submarine torpedoing. Today it has to be proofed against pineapples from overhead. It's got to be a complete bomb-proof egg all around—underneath, above and sideways.

It's a nuisance to protect its decks; it makes it topheavy.

However, Inventor-Secretary Edison can do it, if anybody can.

Anyway, Secretary Edison still believes in our navy.

Other big countries have three departments—army, navy and aviation. We have two—army and navy, with aviation split between 'em.

They're jealous outfits, every which-way.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

LINING UP A SQUEEZE

MANY OF the nicest squeeze plays—even double ones which squeeze both defenders—are just naturally dealt into the cards, so that all the declarer has to do is run off his consecutive winners and let the opponents do the squirming. Occasionally the declarer has some real work to do first, however, in order to produce a lineup whereby a squeeze is possible, with the arrangements of cards left to the victims such that they cannot do anything about it.

When West led the club Q, it became clear to the declarer that a squeeze was the best chance for his contract, a double squeeze in which both opponents would have to try to guard the third diamond, with West protecting against a second club and East against a third heart. But that could not be done unless East could be forced to get rid of the club K which was marked in his hand by the lead.

Lee Hazen, whose fine work on this deal helped him finish second Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In the recent national individual masters championship, found the way to dispose of East's club K. After taking the lead with the club A and cashing dummy's two trumps, he led dummy's club 2, the K going on and getting ruffed. Followed three more spades, a heart to the Q and A, the heart K winning the return, then the last spade.

On this tenth trick, West had to keep the club J to guard dummy's 6, so tossed one of his three diamonds, whereupon the club was shed from dummy. Now East was pinched. If he threw a diamond, three tricks would come in that suit; if his heart, the 9 would be good for South. He picked a diamond, so the final tricks were made there. Had that second club not been led and ruffed, East could have guarded the heart and club and West could have protected the diamonds, so there would have been no squeeze.

SYNOPSIS.
THE CHARACTERS:
BENJAMIN MERRIFIELD, aged capitalist, hires
GAYLE DIXON to make love to his grandson.
JEREMY TUCKER, a shy student of archeology, while
BILL BAILEY and six pretty girls are employed to help bring life and youth to the Merrifield mansion.
YESTERDAY: A society editor learns that a gay party is to be held on the Merrifield estate and the town starts talking about it.
CHAPTER THIRTEEN
ON SATURDAY evening Bill Bailey had drawn his first money, charged to expenses. With it on Sunday he left The Oaks.
"I'm going out and sniff the winds of hallyhoo," he told Gayle. She didn't fully understand him, but she encouraged him to go. She herself would accompany Mr. Merrifield, Mr. Weems and Jeremy to church.
Bill went to places where he knew word "got around." He himself was not yet known to be working and staying at The Oaks, so he could listen undisturbed. At the University club he verified the fact that upper crust society was still indignant about the forthcoming party. At an exhibition tennis match on the Montrose club courts—swankiest in the state—he heard more people talking about the Merrifield Little Theater movement than about the internationally famous tennis star. All of this tickled Bill's buoyant soul.
On Monday morning Bill, back on his job, got up early and had the morning paper ahead of anybody else. It was elaborate with more news of the amateur play, but had bare mention of the Tuesday dance. Bill knew that Monday is a slack period for the society sections of all newspapers, and so the afternoon dailies would likely give generous space to the play, too.
"I'll distribute the tickets first thing after breakfast," Bill told Gayle as soon as he found her up. They had sauntered for a moment on the Merrifield lawn to greet a brilliant sun.
"Where will you put them?"
"There are three established places downtown—a jewelry store, a drug store and the Last Curtain club—where theater tickets of this sort are sold. I mean, handled for charity, without commission. Our expenses on this play won't be more than $35 or so, Gayle. We'll have a nice profit if we make any sort of sale."
"Oh, I hope we do. For Mr. Merrifield's sake as much as anything."
Bill grinned.
"He doesn't need any charity help."
"Silly! But he does want to see things succeed, see promises carried out. You know that, Bill."
Bill indeed did know that. It was a nagging realization of that, in fact, which drove him on, when he had impulsively planned a few days ago to chuck the whole business of working here and set in making love to Gayle. He remembered, in time, that he had made a promise to Mr. Merrifield. And there was the added important fact of his being without funds.
While Bill was away this morning distributing tickets, photographers came again from two newspapers, an hour or so apart. Sunday's papers had really found little to go on, pictorially speaking. They had obtained from Mr. Weems a formal portrait of Jeremy Tucker, and one of Mr. Merrifield. These two poses, with a small picture of the mansion itself, had constituted the layout in each of the papers, and as society pictures they were inadequate. Jeremy looked like the scared collegian he had been when that portrait was made, and while Mr. Merrifield looked distinguished, that still wasn't enough.

"Get some punch, some oomph," the publisher of Mrs. Molly Van Orsdale's paper had demanded, too late for Sunday. "Have a good picture spread for Tuesday, the day of the party. Skip the men, mostly. They don't make society. Get women."
The staff photographer had growled. "There's no cheese cake at that Merrifield castle. It's a male den."
"Then get a guest list. Take young Tucker's date, whoever she is."
The photographer was admitted to the mansion on this Monday by Graham, and he went straight to the point.
"Say, butler, be a sport, eh? What girl is this Jeremy squiring tomorrow night?"
Butlers often know things, as the photographer well knew. But Graham was impeccable.
"I could not say, sir," he answered, pontifically. "Miss Dixon has charge of all arrangements."
"Who's she?"
"The—ah, hostess here. Mr. Merrifield has placed everything, socially, in her complete charge. A very capable person."
"Lemme talk to the old skirt, eh?"
"Why—quite so, sir!" Graham was astonished, but just human enough to let matters take their course.

The cynical and somewhat bored photographer expected Miss Dixon to be an efficiency expert, contemptuous in age with old Mr. Merrifield himself. When Gayle Dixon walked into the room to greet him, however, his chin fell.
The conversation was interesting, if brief. The photographer's enlightenment took only a couple of minutes, during which his professional instincts soared. Before Gayle quite realized it, he was taking pictures of her.

He found that a very pleasant procedure. His trained eye knew that Gayle would photograph well, and print well from newspaper engravings.

"Who is Mr. Tucker bringing to the ball?" he asked Gayle, sociably. "What girl?"
Gayle thought fast. She well realized that Jeremy had no "girl." And that so delicate a situation would be hers to handle and hers alone.

"I am to have that honor myself," she smiled sweetly at the man with the camera, thereby further enslaving him. He promptly exposed two more plates, just to be sure!

"I am really here with Mr. William Bailey, organizing Mr. Merrifield's new Little Theater movement," Gayle was saying a moment later. "We have the most delightful play under way. Will you come and peek in a moment at rehearsal?" The other girls are here this morning, too, practicing their parts."

The other girls!
Six other girls, to be exact, and the most exquisitely beautiful sextette this newspaper man ever had encountered. "Whee-e-e-e-e-e!" was his exhaled tribute, discovering them.

Now the photographer normally carried only two dozen negatives in his camera equipment, and he had already made seven shots of Gayle alone. He promptly set in, though, to do his best with the remaining 17. With Gayle's willing help, and amid the gaiety and chatter of the other girls, he took picture after picture, posing the beauties as adroitly as he knew how—against the theater stage, on the sun porch with flowers over and around them, outside by the sun dial—wherever he could think of a place and a way. Often Gayle was posed with them. Gayle made it clear that all seven of the girls were to be at the party tomorrow night as well as in the play a week hence.

He got their names: Gayle Dixon, Tempe Hyde, Lillian Trainor, Margaret Louise Kirby, Adele Laraway, Hazel Green and the quiet, somewhat strange Lola Montes. Lola had not wanted to pose at all; she had showed a hint of anger at the suggestion, in fact, and only under laughing pressure from the others had she finally agreed. The photographer found her as beautiful as the others, even though he plainly didn't like her as well.

The photographer hastened back to his office then and, mechanical efficiency being what it is in newspaperdom, the afternoon Gazette came out with "The Merrifield Girls" boldly pictured in three-fourths of a page. They virtually monopolized the society section for that day, as they were destined to do in Tuesday morning's papers as well.

Inevitably there was further discussion of the play "Maid to Measure." The clever title seemed to fit right in with the exquisite photos of the girls; more and more talk was stimulated, quite naturally. The Gazette was read everywhere.

That and the publicity already given the forthcoming play, the prestige back of the Merrifield name and mansion, and the inexpensive but commanding signs Bill Bailey had left at the ticket sale depots, began to move the tickets as early as 2 p. m., and at 6 o'clock that Monday the clerk at the Last Curtain club telephoned Bill.

"Say, Mr. Bailey, I have only eight tickets left out of the 200 you put here," he announced. "Can you bring me some more?"
Bill was elated, and so was Gayle. They commandeered the Merrifield car and chauffeur immediately to rush downtown and shift some tickets from the drug store booth. The jewelry store had closed for the day.

"It's the pictures that did it!" Bill repeated, again studying the Gazette as he rode back homeward with Gayle. "They're not only pretty, they're interesting."

By sheer coincidence (of which Bill and Gayle knew nothing) another man made almost the same comment in another part of the city, at about the same time. He was Mr. Oscar Draper, chief identification expert in the bureau of detectives, police headquarters.

Mr. Draper leaned on the desk of the captain of detectives and said, "You know, Cap'n, these are damned good looking and interesting girls, and for no reason at all one of them looks familiar."

"Familiar!" the detective echoed. "You speaking personally or professionally?"
"Professionally," said the officer. "Captain, there's a crook in that crowd. Wait till I go dig into my files."

OPEN LETTERS

TO POLITICAL CHIEFS

EXECUTIVES: The action taken last week to combat Circleville's vote buying practice is commendable, despite the fact that the publicity given the undertaking was not so favorable in some respects. Numerous Central Ohio cities were given the impression that Circleville and Pickaway County comprised another Harlan County or another Pike County where voting frauds are the rule rather than the exception. Political chairmen proved in this undertaking that cooperation is possible even between rival political camps when the good of the community is concerned. There are persons in Circleville who have said they would not vote unless they were paid for it; they should be barred from forever casting another ballot for a candidate. Much of the fault can be traced to the politicians themselves, because if they refused to put out money voters would have no source available from which to receive their 50 cents or dollar, or whatever may be the current price for votes. Some believe that law authorities should have remained quiet concerning their patrolling plans until the day of the primary and then to make some arrests as object lessons. Whether this would have been a more efficient method than the one used is something else. Here's hoping that political leaders and candidates get together before the fall election and decide definitely to put out no money at all. Whether this possibility exists is not known, but the refusal of both parties to buy votes would go a long way toward breaking up the practice.

CIRCUITEER.

TO NEW HOLLAND ATHLETES

BOYS, GIRLS: It might be a good idea to keep this Open Letter in type so that it can be used from year to year to offer congratulations to you boys and girls who walked away with the annual Pickaway County track and field title. Each year finds a New Holland track and field team right at the top in competition, whether it be county or district, and 1940 found the school's representatives among the best, as a team, that have been developed in a long while. I believe that the total of points scored by you athletes was the highest ever recorded in the county, and for that accomplishment, congratulations, too. The various individuals who comprised the track and field team deserve credit, as do the youngsters who participated for other schools of the county. There is talk of abandoning the track and field competition in favor of other spring sports, but I feel certain that before this is done there will be much protesting from the New Holland community, and such protesting would be perfectly in order. Some of the county's other schools would do well to stress track and field competition because boys and girls can compete instead of boys only as would be the case if some other form of competition were approved for the county schedule.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HONORED STUDENTS

GIRLS: Orchids this week go to the Misses Marilyn Lutz and Eleanor McDill for their selection as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, of Circleville High School's graduating class. The word selection is not exactly a proper one, because the girls earned their honors rather than being selected for them. To be the two highest in a class the size of this year's graduating group is truly an honor, one of which the girls named can well be proud. Their work goes back over a four year period because grades are checked during the entire high school career to determine those who deserve ranking honors. The commencement on June 3 should be a splendid one with Dr. Otto Mees scheduled for the address. Seniors are busy winding up their work, those in danger of missing the graduation express doing a lot of grinding, and others enjoying themselves by other means.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PARENTS

FOLK: Saturday night brings an event to Central Ohio that should attract many hundreds of persons to the coliseum at the Ohio State fairgrounds. It is the annual Central Ohio Area Council Scout-o-Rama put on by the Boy Scouts of the district. Circleville and Pickaway County will have troops competing, youths seeking honor against other youths in good, clean competition and having fun at the same time. The flag ceremony that opens the festivities is awe-inspiring. It is something that persons who have seen the Scout-o-Rama can never forget. I wish that it would be possible for every father and mother of a boy of Scout age in Circleville and Pickaway County to be present for this Scout-o-Rama. I am certain that Scout organization leaders would have no trouble obtaining support for their troop organization program if such a thing could be arranged. Scout leaders are needed now, and so is money with which to carry on the Boy Scout program in Pickaway County. Members of the various Circleville troops have tickets for the Scout-o-Rama and I hope they are able to sell all of them.

CIRCUITEER.

TO TEEGARDIN FAMILY

FRIENDS: The announcement this week that polled shorthorn stock developed at your property near Duvall had won a grand title at a livestock show in New South Wales, Australia, is a tribute to you people who have developed one of the finest, if not the finest, shorthorn herd in the United States. The Teegardin stock has won hundreds of awards in county fairs, state fairs and numerous expositions, whether national or international, but this one caps the successes of the shorthorns. The Australian exposition was advertised as the greatest of its kind in the country from "down under", and the honor won by the Pickaway County-bred stock is indeed one of which to be proud.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

AIRMEN all are saying, "We told you so." Surface warriors don't admit that the Norwegian campaign has proved the obsolescence of their methods of fighting. They're not quite as confident as they were, however. Naval opinion is even more disorganized than army strategists. Even aviators don't dispute that soldiers have got to get down to earth to occupy any particular area. Flyers can devastate everything underneath them, but, having done so, it's admitted that nothing remains for them but to scot away; they can't dig in and stay there. They'll have prepared the way for groundlings to bounce in and take possession, but that final job is left to terrestrial scrappers.

Aviators do contend, though, that a powerful air fleet opposed to a comparatively weak one, is a sure winner over sea strength, however overwhelming it may be on the water.

Navy men have argued contrariwise. They haven't pooh-poohed the plane, but they've maintained that it's a mere "arm"—not decisive. Quoting our own American experts, I had occasion to remark recently that the current war promises to settle this controversy. It wasn't settled by the last world conflict, because aviation was then relatively in its infancy. It wasn't settled by subsequent experimentation, because that sort of theoretical maneuvers isn't overly convincing.

THE REAL ARTICLE

Now we're getting the real article, under modern conditions. Nobody can say that, thus far, Germany hasn't had overwhelmingly the best of matters, as to Norway. True, the Germans have outnumbered the Allies there, but they had to GET there either over, across or under the water. If Britain's sea supremacy is what it's cracked up to be, why didn't John Bull prevent this?

Answer, according to the aviators, is:

Sea supremacy has gone floozy. German aviation has done the business.

Their version is that fleets no longer amount to much. They still are in favor of land battalions, but they speak of warships as back numbers.

Navy men's account is different. Their story is that the Allies were asleep at the switch, or they'd have spiked the German invasion. Also, they say, this affair has been at very short range—that planes can't operate effectively anywhere except very close to their jumping-off places.

All the same, the Germans registered. Surface folk are somewhat rattled by it. Not that they care a hoot—but they're professionally interested by it.

NAVY SECRETARY EDISON
Navy Secretary Charles Edison's doubts are highly significant.

Edison is generally regarded as the ablest navy secretary we ever had, both on the strength of his personal record, and because of his hereditary background.

We need, Edison tells us, to have our warship armament rejiggered, in opposition to overhead warfare.

When an authority like Edison speaks he's worth listening to.

Hitherto a warship has needed to be protected against broadside hits. Then it began to be necessary to protect it against submarine torpedoing. Today it has to be proofed against pineapples from overhead. It's got to be a complete bomb-proof egg all around—underneath, above and sidewise.

It's a nuisance to protect its decks; it makes it topheavy.

However, Inventor-Secretary Edison can do it, if anybody can. Anyway, Secretary Edison still believes in our navy.

Other big countries have three departments—army, navy and aviation. We have two—army and navy, with aviation split between 'em.

They're jealous outfits, every which-way.

"Hire the little fellow, Henry. You'll get more work done!"

CONTRACT BRIDGE

LINING UP A SQUEEZE

MANY OF the nicest squeeze plays—even double ones which squeeze both defenders—are just naturally dealt into the cards, so that all the declarer has to do is run off his consecutive winners and let the opponents do the squirming. Occasionally the declarer has some real work to do first, however, in order to produce a lineup whereby a squeeze is possible, with the arrangements of cards left to the victims such that they cannot do anything about it.

When West led the club Q, it became clear to the declarer that a squeeze was the best chance for his contract, a double squeeze in which both opponents would have to try to guard the third diamond, with West protecting against a second club and East against a third heart. But that could not be done unless East could be forced to get rid of the club K which was marked in his hand by the lead.

in the recent national individual masters championship, found the way to dispose of East's club K. After taking the lead with the club A and cashing dummy's two trumps, he led dummy's club 2, the K going on and getting ruffed. Followed three more spades, a heart to the Q and A, the heart K winning the return, then the last spade.

On this tenth trick, West had to keep the club J to guard dummy's 6, so tossed one of his three diamonds, whereupon the club was shed from dummy. Now East was pinched. If he threw a diamond, three tricks would come in that suit; if his heart, the 9 would be good for South. He picked a diamond, so the final tricks were made there. Had that second club not been led and ruffed, East could have guarded the heart and club and West could have protected the diamonds, so there would have been no squeeze.

THE CHARACTERS:
BENJAMIN MERRIFIELD, aged capitalist, hires
GAYLE DIXON to make love to his grandson,
JEREMY TUCKER, a shy student of archeology, while
BILL BAILEY and six pretty girls are employed to help bring life and youth to the Merrifield mansion.

YESTERDAY: A society editor learns that a gay party is to be held on the Merrifield estate and the town starts talking about it.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

ON SATURDAY evening Bill Bailey had drawn his first money, charged to expenses. With it on Sunday he left The Oaks.

"I'm going out and sniff the winds of ballyhoo," he told Gayle. She didn't fully understand him, but she encouraged him to go. She herself would accompany Mr. Merrifield, Mr. Weems and Jeremy to church.

Bill went to places where he knew word "got around." He himself was not yet known to be working and staying at The Oaks, so he could listen undisturbed. At the University club he verified the fact that upper crust society was still indignant about the forthcoming party. At an exhibition tennis match on the Montrose club courts—swankiest in the state—he heard more people talking about the Merrifield Little Theater movement than about the internationally famous tennis star. All of this tickled Bill's buoyant soul.

On Monday morning Bill, back on his job, got up early and had the morning paper ahead of anybody else. It was elaborate with more news of the amateur play, but had bare mention of the Tuesday dance. Bill knew that Monday is a slack period for the society sections of all newspapers, and so the afternoon dailies would likely give generous space to the play, too.

"I'll distribute the tickets first thing after breakfast," Bill told Gayle as soon as he found her up.

They had sauntered for a moment on the Merrifield lawn to greet a brilliant sun.

"Where will you put them?"
"There are three established places downtown—a jewelry store, a drug store and the Last Curtain Club—where theater tickets of this sort are sold. I mean, handled for charity, without commission. Our expenses on this play won't be more than $35 or so, Gayle. We'll have a nice profit if we make any sort of sale."

"Oh, I hope we do. For Mr. Merrifield's sake as much as anything."

Bill grinned.
"He doesn't need any charity help."

"Silly! But he does want to see things succeed, see promises carried out. You know that, Bill."

Bill indeed did know that. It was a nagging realization of that, in fact, which drove him on, when he had impulsively planned a few days ago to chuck the whole business of working here and set in making love to Gayle. He remembered, in time, that he had made a promise to Mr. Merrifield. And there was the added important fact of his being without funds.

While Bill was away this morning distributing tickets, photographers came again from two newspapers, an hour or so apart. Sunday's papers had really found little to go on, pictorially speaking. They had obtained from Mr. Weems a formal portrait of Jeremy Tucker, and one of Mr. Merrifield. These two poses, with a small picture of the mansion itself, had constituted the layout in each of the papers, and as society pictures they were inadequate. Jeremy looked like the scared collegian he had been when that portrait was made, and while Mr. Merrifield looked distinguished, that still wasn't enough.

"Get some punch, some oomph," the publisher of Mrs. Molly Van Orsdale's paper had demanded, too late for Sunday. "Have a good picture spread for Tuesday, the day of the party. Skip the men, mostly. They don't make society. Get women."

The staff photographer had growled, "There's no cheese cake at that Merrifield castle. It's a male den."

"Then get a guest list. Take young Tucker's date, whoever she is."

The photographer was admitted to the mansion on this Monday by Graham, and he went straight to the point.

"Say, butler, be a sport, eh? What girl is this Jeremy squiring tomorrow night?"

Butlers often know things, as the photographer well knew. But Graham was impeccable.

"I could not say, sir," he answered, pompously. "Miss Dixon has charge of all arrangements."

"Who's she?"

"The—ah, hostess here. Mr. Merrifield has placed everything, socially, in her complete charge. A very capable person."

"Lemme talk to the old skirt, eh?"

"Why—quite so, sir!" Graham was astonished, but just human enough to let matters take their course.

The cynical and somewhat bored photographer expected Miss Dixon to be an efficiency expert contemporaneous in age with old Mr. Merrifield himself. When Gayle Dixon walked into the room to greet him, however, his chin fell.

The conversation was interesting, if brief. The photographer's enlightenment took only a couple of minutes, during which his professional instincts soared. Before Gayle quite realized it, he was taking pictures of her.

He found that a very pleasant procedure. His trained eye knew that Gayle would photograph well, and print well from newspaper engravings.

"Who is Mr. Tucker bringing to the ball?" he asked Gayle, sociably. "What girl?"

Gayle thought fast. She well realized that Jeremy had no "girl." And that so delicate a situation would be hers to handle and hers alone.

"I am to have that honor myself," she smiled sweetly at the man with the camera, thereby further enslaving him. He promptly exposed two more plates, just to be sure!

"I am really here with Mr. William Bailey, organizing Mr. Merrifield's new Little Theater movement," Gayle was saying a moment later. "We have the most delightful play under way. Will you come and peek in a moment at rehearsal? The—the other girls are here this morning, too, practicing their parts."

The other girls! Six other girls, to be exact, and the most exquisitely beautiful set of this newspaper man ever had encountered. "Whee-e-e-e-ew!" was his exhaled tribute, discovering them.

Now the photographer normally carried only two dozen negatives in his camera equipment, and he had already made seven shots of Gayle alone. He promptly set in, though, to do his best with the remaining 17. With Gayle's willing help, and amid the gaiety and chatter of the other girls, he took picture after picture, posing the beauties as adroitly as he knew how—against the theater stage, on the sun porch with flowers over and around them, outside by the sun dial—wherever he could think of a place and a way. Often Gayle was posed with them. Gayle made it clear that all seven of the girls were to be at the party tomorrow night as well as in the play a week hence.

He got their names: Gayle Dixon, Tempe Hyde, Lillian Trainor, Margaret Louise Kirby, Adele Laraway, Hazel Green and the quiet, somewhat strange Lola Montesa. Lola had not wanted to pose at all; she had showed a hint of anger at the suggestion, in fact, and only under laughing pressure from the others had she finally agreed. The photographer found her as beautiful as the others, even though he plainly didn't like her as well.

The photographer hastened back to his office then and, mechanical efficiency being what it is in newspaperdom, the afternoon Gazette came out with "The Merrifield Girls" boldly pictured in three-fourths of a page. They virtually monopolized the society section for that day, as they were destined to do in Tuesday morning's papers as well.

Inevitably there was further discussion of the play "Maid to Measure." The clever title seemed to fit right in with the exquisite photos of the girls; more and more talk was stimulated, quite naturally. The Gazette was read everywhere.

That and the publicity already given the forthcoming play, the prestige back of the Merrifield name and mansion, and the inexpensive but commanding signs Bill Bailey had left at the ticket sale depots, began to move the tickets as early as 2 p. m., and at 6 o'clock that Monday the clerk at the Last Curtain Club telephoned Bill.

"Say, Mr. Bailey, I have only eight tickets left out of the 200 you put here," he announced. "Can you bring me some more?"

Bill was elated, and so was Gayle. They commandeered the Merrifield car and chauffeur immediately to rush downtown and shift some tickets from the drug store booth. The jewelry store had closed for the day.

"It's the pictures that did it!" Bill repeated, again studying the Gazette as he rode back homeward with Gayle. "They're not only pretty, they're interesting."

By sheer coincidence (of which Bill and Gayle knew nothing) another man made almost the same comment in another part of the city, at about the same time. He was Mr. Oscar Draper, chief identification expert in the bureau of detectives, police headquarters.

Mr. Draper leaned on the desk of the captain of detectives and said, "You know, Cap'n, these are damned good looking and interesting girls, and for no reason at all one of them looks familiar."

"Familiar!" the detective echoed. "You speaking personally or professionally?"

"Professionally," said the officer. "Captain, there's a crook in that crowd. Wait till I go dig into my files."

Junior Reserves Honor President at Banquet

Jeweled Pin Given To Margaret Boggs

Miss Margaret Boggs, president of the Junior Girl Reserves, received the special award of a jeweled pin at the annual Mother-Daughter Banquet Thursday in the social room of the Circleville High School. This was presented in recognition of outstanding work for the group. Girl Reserve necklaces were awarded Miss Boggs, the Misses Margaret Ann Grose, Dorothy Cook, Dorothy Ann Dresbach, Lois Madison and Betty Moeller of the sophomore group, Miss Florence Dresbach and Miss Viola Arledge of the freshmen. The necklaces had the blue emblem of the club on silver lockets. Miss Alice Roof, club adviser, presented the gifts during the program hour.

Many large bouquets of spring flowers decorated the social room and the tables where the 66 members and guests were served at 6:30 p. m. Favors of tiny nosegays, made up of lilacs-of-the-valley and sweetpeas, were at the places of the mothers and the girls who received the awards. The dinner was served by candlelight, blue and white candles in crystal holders alternating down the strips of blue paper which extended the length of the white covers.

Miss Boggs, extended the formal welcome to the mothers, Mrs. John Boggs, her mother, responding. After the awards were distributed by Miss Roof, the program opened with a poem concerning "mothers" by Miss Rosemary Brown. Miss Mary Catherine Stein pleased the group with a piano solo, Miss Anna Sue Reichelderfer presented a monologue, Miss Dorothy Glenn concluding the special numbers with two accordion solos. The club members sang "Follow the Glean," a Girl Reserve song, at the close of the affair.

The committee chairmen were Miss Florence Dresbach, program; Miss Julia Jane Work, table service; Miss Madison, decoration; Miss Betty Norris, tables and chairs; Miss Grose, flowers and Miss Wanda Grabill, clean-up. The delightful dinner was prepared by the Ladies-Aid Society of the United Brethren Church.

Bride-Elect Honored
Mrs. Nevin Wagner and her daughter, Louise, complimented Miss Margaret List, a bride-elect, when they entertained a group of friends at a miscellaneous shower Thursday at their home near East Ringgold. Miss List, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loring List, of near Marcy, will become the bride of Mr. Robert Mallory of Columbus June 9.

The guests included Mrs. W. E. Crist, Mrs. Sadie McCrady, Mrs. J. Gathering at 8:30 p. m., the guests enjoyed games and contests with prizes won by Mrs. Leasure, the Misses Richey, List and Westenhaver.

After the many choice shower gifts were opened by Miss List, the hostesses served a delightful buffet supper.

Church of Brethren Aid
The Church of the Brethren Ladies' Aid society held its May session Thursday at the home of Mrs. Daisy Dumm, South Washington Street with 23 members and one guest, Mrs. Frank Baker, present.

Group singing, scripture reading and prayer led by Mrs. Harry Woods opened the meeting.

During the business meeting, plans were discussed for the sale to be in June with a special session of the aid called for Thursday, May 23, when arrangements will be completed. This meeting will be at the home of Mrs. William Starkey, Town Street.

Mrs. Charles Sterling and Mrs. Elmer Caldwell were in charge of the program. Mrs. Ida Davis, Mrs. Mary Holbrook and Mrs. Daisy Watson donated articles which were sold at auction, the proceeds being placed in the treasury. Two

Jeweled Pin Given To Margaret Boggs

Miss Margaret Boggs, president of the Junior Girl Reserves, received the special award of a jeweled pin at the annual Mother-Daughter Banquet Thursday in the social room of the Circleville High School. This was presented in recognition of outstanding work for the group. Girl Reserve necklaces were awarded Miss Boggs, the Misses Margaret Ann Grose, Dorothy Cook, Dorothy Ann Dresbach, Lois Madison and Betty McMiller of the sophomore group, Miss Florence Dresbach and Miss Viola Arledge of the freshmen. The necklaces had the blue emblem of the club on silver lockets. Miss Alice Roof, club adviser, presented the gifts during the program hour.

Many large bouquets of spring flowers decorated the social room and the tables where the 66 members and guests were served at 8:30 p. m. Favors of tiny nosegays, made up of lilies-of-the-valley and sweetpeas, were at the places of the mothers and the girls who received the awards. The dinner was served by candlelight, blue and white candles in crystal holders alternating down the strips of blue paper which extended the length of the white covers.

Miss Boggs, extended the formal welcome to the mothers, Mrs. John Boggs, her mother, responding. After the awards were distributed by Miss Roof, the program opened with a poem concerning "mothers" by Miss Rosemary Brown. Miss Mary Catherine Stein pleased the group with a piano solo. Miss Anna Sue Reichelderfer presented a monologue, Miss Dorothy Glenn concluding the special numbers with two accordion solos. The club members sang "Follow the Glee," a Girl Reserve song, at the close of the affair.

The committee chairmen were Miss Florence Dresbach, program; Miss Julia Jane Work, table service; Miss Madison, decoration; Miss Betty Norris, flowers and chairs; Miss Grose, flowers and Miss Wanda Grabill, clean-up. The delightful dinner was prepared by the Ladies-Aid Society of the United Brethren Church.

Bride-Elect Honored

Mrs. Nevin Wagner and her daughter, Louise, complimented Miss Margaret List, a bride-elect, when they entertained a group of friends at a miscellaneous shower Thursday at their home near East Ringgold. Miss List, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loring List of near Marcy, will become the bride of Mr. Robert Mallory of Columbus June 9.

The guests included Mrs. W. E. Crist, Mrs. Sadie McCrady, Mrs. J. Wallace Crist, Mrs. Harry Gatrell, Mrs. Arthur Barthelmas, Mrs. Helen Wolf, Mrs. Ernest Lininger, Mrs. Doris Leasure, Mrs. Stella Spangler, Mrs. Margaret Cook, Mrs. List, the Misses Marjorie Westenhaver, Erna Watts, Mildred Urton, Clarissa Talbut, Minnie Palm, Virginia Richey, Betty Renick, Leona Dumm, Bease Gordon and Miss List, the honored guest.

Gathering at 8:30 p. m., the guests enjoyed games and contests with prizes won by Mrs. Leasure, the Misses Richey, List and Westenhaver.

After the many choice shower gifts were opened by Miss List, the hostesses served a delightful buffet supper.

Gene Sarazen Provides Thrills In Golf Match

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, May 17—Just as though he could push back the clock with the flick of his wrist and return to those days when he was one of the world's greatest golfers, Gene Sarazen, the so-called squire of Connecticut, today was tied for the lead in the annual Goodall Round Robbin golf tournament after a stretch of golf comparable to the best he ever shot. The Goodall event is a little confusing if you try to figure out the scoring, but it is basically sound—and tough. Hence Sarazen's good fortune in the opening round. The little veteran of a thousand tournaments is at his best in the tough going.

He is credited with eight points on yesterday's play for a deadlock with Jimmy Thomson, but it was Sarazen who provided the fireworks over the Fresh Meadow course at nearby Flushing, Long Island, as 15 of the best professionals available started blasting in the four-day event.

Sarazen shot a mediocre 39, or four over par going out and at this point stood one down to Martin Pose, of the Argentine, and three down to Henry Picard, the professional champion, who completed Sarazen's threesome. Then coming home he began banging the ball and quite in keeping with the brand of play that has made him a competitor and champion for so many years, he gradually pulled away.

Briefly, his incoming card showed seven threes with the result that he finished plus 4's against both of his opponents of the opening day. He came home in 31 for a par 70.

Meantime, Thomson, who has been the game's longest bitter and most frustrated participant for so long, was finishing by the same margin over Jimmy Demaret, the red hot Texan who is ranked among the favorites, and Craig Wood.

Behind Sarazen and Thomson came Clayton Heafner, the North Carolina candy-maker, with a plus seven, followed by Ben Hogan and Paul Runyan tied at plus four; Sam Snead, plus three, and Byron Nelson, plus one.

ASSOCIATION IN NEED OF BETTER PLAYING WEATHER

COLUMBUS, May 17—American Association teams today hoped for better weather conditions that will allow a full schedule to be played.

In the only contest played yesterday, Kansas City further strengthened its hold on first place by defeating St. Paul, 5 to 1. Games between Columbus and Indianapolis, Toledo and Louisville and Minneapolis and Milwaukee were frozen out.

NEW HOLLANDERS LOSE IN CENTRAL DISTRICT

The New Holland High School baseball team was defeated 14-3 in the Central District Class B competition Thursday at the hands of Radnor. Stead pitching for the winners gave up only three safeties. Stout started on the mound for New Holland.

Other victors in the tournament were Milford Center, 3, Iberia, 0; Carroll 9, Centerburg 1, and Mifflin 12, Homer 3.

The games were played on the Ohio State University diamond.

Metcalfe Holds Big Margin For Place On Bench

Marietta Man To Succeed Judge Peter Blosser Of Chillicothe

MCCURDY, GILLEN REMAIN

District Court Nominee In Large Lead With 32,768 Ballots Cast

The lead of Verner Metcalfe of Marietta as a judge of the Fourth District Court of Appeals continues to increase as counties of the district complete their report to the Scioto County Board of Elections. Reports are sent to Scioto County since it is the most populous of the district.

Metcalfe, running against Judge W. R. White of Gallipolis and Byron Blair of Chillicothe, chairman of the Ross County Republican committee, has received 32,768 votes against 21,298 for White and 10,383 for Blair.

Nomination is tantamount of election since there were no Democrats on the slate. Fifteen counties comprise the district court.

Metcalfe will succeed Judge Peter J. Blosser of Chillicothe, who did not seek reelection. He will join with Judges Russell McCurdy of Portsmouth and Roy Gillen of Wellston, holdover members of the court.

Judge Blosser, who has been a member of the district court for many years, announced last fall that he would not seek reelection. A noble barrister, Judge Blosser plans to spend his time traveling and directing the operation of his farm property, some of which lies in Pickaway County.

Pickaway County's vote gave the Marietta man 775, Judge White 207 and Byron Blair, who was born in Deercreek Township, Pickaway County, 329.

Terwilliger's Vote Of 3,443 Largest

Judge Meeker Terwilliger, Democratic candidate for Common Pleas Judge, received more votes in Pickaway County than any other candidate for any office, Claude Kraft, clerk of the board of elections, revealed Friday.

Judge Terwilliger received 3,443 votes. Dr. Edward Montgomery, Democratic candidate for coroner, received the next highest number of votes with 3,225, while Prosecutor George Gerhardt was third with 3,092.

Martin L. Davey, Democratic candidate for governor, was fourth with 3,042 and Sheriff Charles Radcliff, opposed by seven candidates, fifth with 2,998.

"MIDNIGHT ON AIR"

Cecil B. DeMille, Claudette Colbert and Don Ameche agreed to do "Midnight" in the Radio Theatre, at some future date, even before the picture was completed. Ameche recalled this week. The show goes on the air Monday night, May 20th. DeMille wandered on the Paramount set where "Midnight" was being shot, watched a few scenes, and got into a conversation with Ameche and Miss Colbert. Ameche told him briefly the story of "Midnight." Sounds as though we should do it in the Radio Theatre," DeMille said, getting verbal approval from Ameche and Miss Colbert to play the leading roles. Since then, Miss Colbert and Ameche haven't been free from other duties at the same time.

"TUNE UP TIME" BACK

"Tune-Up Time" returns to its New York studio, Monday evening, May 20, after a six week's Hollywood sojourn, with a melodic variety of summertime musical fare. Orchestral contributions to this broadcast will include two Kostelanetz arrangements of well-known airs. The first, a "Porgy and Bess" suite from the late George Gershwin's Broadway hit about Catfish Row in Charleston, will be made up of "It Ain't Necessarily So", "I've Got Plenty of Nothin'", and "Bess, You Is My Woman Now".

The second orchestral feature will be a novelty Kostelanetz rendition of that American folk classic, "Take Me Out To The Ball Game".

RADIO BRIEFS

Arthur Godfrey, Washington's jovial, musical radio man, is preparing a column for syndication in which he will poke gentle fun at the politics he observes in the Capitol city.

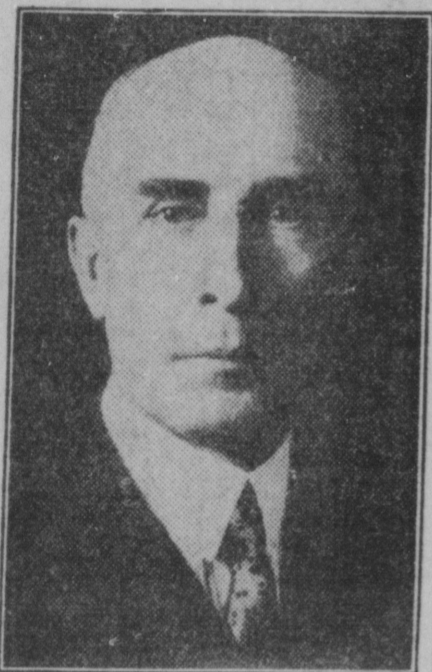

The Stardusters quartet, discovered and moulded by Producer John Bates, will go on a theatre personal appearance tour next month if bookings can be arranged which will not interfere with their broadcasts.

JUDGES DECIDE PROFESSIONALS OF MORE VALUE

The professional men are worth more to the community than the employees, the farmers or the business men, according to the judges' decision at the Lutheran Brotherhood meeting Thursday evening at the Trinity Lutheran Parish House.

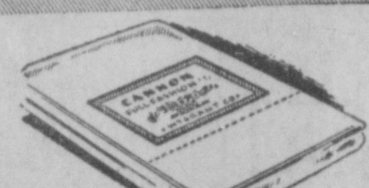

The judges' decision came after each of the four groups had attempted at previous meetings to prove it was worth more to the community than the other three. The judges, Dr. G. D. Phillips, J. O. Eagleson, and Marvin Steele, based their decision on participation in the program, uniqueness of the program, presentation and proof.

The farmers were rated next to the professional men in their value to the community. At the next meeting June 6, the professional men will be banqueting by the employees and the business men and will be entertained by the farmers.

Dr. G. D. Phillips was in charge of the meeting Thursday evening. One of the government, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant. He has received a two year appointment to Havana, Cuba. He will sail for Cuba June 5.

Popularity Of AAA Seen In Signup, Chairman Says

"Many Pickaway County farmers have chosen the AAA farm program over mythical war profits and definite soil fertility losses," AAA Chairman John G. Boggs said Friday following the announcement that 65 percent of the farmers in the county have signified their intentions of participating in the farm program this year.

"The sign-up this year is an indication of the popularity of our farm program," he said. At the conclusion of the sign-up period on May 1, 1,354 farms were signed. This represents 71.1 percent of all the cropland acres in Pickaway County.

The farm plan, which the farmer has worked out with the help of an AAA committeeman, includes the acreage allotments for the farm and an estimate of the maximum payment which the farmer may earn through his participation in the 1940 AAA program. Farmers who have signed the farm plan and who participate in the program this year will be eligible for payments for planting within acreage allotments, for carrying out approved soil-building practices, for increasing acreages of soil conserving crops, parity price payments, and corn and wheat loans if offered in 1940.

Throughout Ohio, 167,045 farms and approximately 180,000 farmers will participate in the farm program this year. These farms represent 68.2 percent of Ohio's cropland.

The show goes on the air Monday night, May 20th. DeMille wandered on the Paramount set where "Midnight" was being shot, watched a few scenes, and got into a conversation with Ameche and Miss Colbert. Ameche told him briefly the story of "Midnight." Sounds as though we should do it in the Radio Theatre," DeMille said, getting verbal approval from Ameche and Miss Colbert to play the leading roles. Since then, Miss Colbert and Ameche haven't been free from other duties at the same time.

"TUNE UP TIME" BACK

"Tune-Up Time" returns to its New York studio, Monday evening, May 20, after a six week's Hollywood sojourn, with a melodic variety of summertime musical fare. Orchestral contributions to this broadcast will include two Kostelanetz arrangements of well-known airs. The first, a "Porgy And Bess" suite from the late George Gershwin's Broadway hit about Catfish Row in Charleston, will be made up of "It Ain't Necessarily So," "I've Got Plenty of Nothin'," and "Bess, You Is My Woman Now".

The second orchestral feature will be a novelty Kostelanetz rendition of that American folk classic, "Take Me Out To The Ball Game".

RADIO BRIEFS

Arthur Godfrey, Washington's jovial, musical radio man, is preparing a column for syndication in which he will poke gentle fun at the politics he observes in the Capitol city.

The Stardusters quartet, discovered and moulded by Producer John Bates, will go on a theatre personal appearance tour next month if bookings can be arranged which will not interfere with their broadcasts.

From Bing Crosby's new picture,

"If I Had My Way," come the two Columbia record releases by Kay Kyser and his orchestra. They are "Meet the Sun Half-Way" and "April Played the Fiddle." You'll be hearing them on Kyser's Wednesday night "College of Musical Knowledge."

Al Bernie, who mimics Fred Allen, will be the latter's guest Wednesday, May 22. Bernie got his start with R. Vallee six years ago with his mimicry of the lanky Yankee wit.

Betty Garde, star of "My Son and I," and president of the New York chapter of the Tailwaggers' Association, is sponsoring an "oomph" dog contest in which radio personalities will enter their pets.

Horace Heidt and his "Pot o' Gold" orchestra have dusted off "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" for an air revival. They've recorded the tune, too, for Columbia, with "Kerry Dance" on the reverse.

The Andre Kostelanetz hit, "Isle of May," is heading toward a record for "Hit Parade" hearings. Immediately after Kostelanetz composed it the tune made the Saturday night session and now, after a couple of months, it is rated number seven.

The Sunday night quiz show headed by Johnny Green on CBS has had its name changed from "Swingo" to "Rhymo."

Kate Smith interviews Weber and Fields, comedy team, on her daytime program Wednesday.

Look for a dance with the curious name, "Relyea," to be the next craze. Bob Crosby and his Dixieland bandmen are introducing it.

Bob Ripley's Odditorium is already one of the most popular attractions on the World's Fair's Great White Way.

JUDGES DECIDE PROFESSIONALS OF MORE VALUE

The professional men are worth more to the community than the employees, the farmers or the business men, according to the judges' decision at the Lutheran Brotherhood meeting Thursday evening at the Trinity Lutheran Parish House.

The judges' decision came after each of the four groups had attempted at previous meetings to prove it was worth more to the community than the other three.

The judges, Dr. G. D. Phillips, J. O. Eagleson, and Marvin Steeley, based their decision on participation in the program, uniqueness of the program, presentation and proof.

The farmers were rated next to the professional men in their value to the community.

At the next meeting June 6, the professional men will be banqueting by the employees and the business men and will be entertained by the farmers.

Dr. G. D. Phillips was in charge of the meeting Thursday evening.

ion of the government, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant. He has received a two year appointment to Havana, Cuba. He will sail for Cuba June 5.
